

NYP Home

Real Estate Guide

By KATHRINE DINGELA

More than 100,000 homes are being sold in the New York City area each year, according to the National Association of Realtors. That's a lot of homes, and it's a lot of money.

But the market is hot. In fact, it's the hottest it's been in decades. And many are still.

It's a hot market for buyers, and it's a hot market for sellers. In fact, it's the hottest it's been in decades. And many are still.

The most recent example of a hot market is the New York City area, where the market is hot.

The market is hot. In fact, it's the hottest it's been in decades. And many are still.

It's a hot market for buyers, and it's a hot market for sellers. In fact, it's the hottest it's been in decades. And many are still.

WILL OF THE PEOPLE

Williamsburg buildings take a chainsaw to their prices

But buyers aren't the only ones who are excited. In fact, it's the hottest it's been in decades. And many are still.

The market is hot. In fact, it's the hottest it's been in decades. And many are still.

It's a hot market for buyers, and it's a hot market for sellers. In fact, it's the hottest it's been in decades. And many are still.

RENTAL? Noted. New heights are in fashion at Manhattan's hot and cold, hotbeds. Here, a view of a sleek new building.

It's a hot market for buyers, and it's a hot market for sellers. In fact, it's the hottest it's been in decades. And many are still.

The market is hot. In fact, it's the hottest it's been in decades. And many are still.

WILL CALL

By KATHRINE DINGELA

The way the world has changed, says George Conroy, founder of the real estate firm at 110th St. in Manhattan, is that the market is hot.

"The market is hot. In fact, it's the hottest it's been in decades. And many are still.

It's a hot market for buyers, and it's a hot market for sellers. In fact, it's the hottest it's been in decades. And many are still.

The market is hot. In fact, it's the hottest it's been in decades. And many are still.

It's a hot market for buyers, and it's a hot market for sellers. In fact, it's the hottest it's been in decades. And many are still.

The market is hot. In fact, it's the hottest it's been in decades. And many are still.

It's a hot market for buyers, and it's a hot market for sellers. In fact, it's the hottest it's been in decades. And many are still.

The market is hot. In fact, it's the hottest it's been in decades. And many are still.

It's a hot market for buyers, and it's a hot market for sellers. In fact, it's the hottest it's been in decades. And many are still.